

May 27, 2009

'Stand Up To Cancer' Proceeds to Go to Groundbreaking Research

ABC, CBS, NBC Raised $73.6 Million During Last Year's Telecast

By EMILY FRIEDMAN

Stand Up To Cancer, the charitable initiative launched last year and aimed at getting new cancer treatments to patients as quickly as possible, will announce today the first round of three-year grants totaling $73.6 million to five research "dream teams."

Stand Up To Cancer will award upwards of $73.6 million to groundbreaking cancer research.

(ABC News)

More Photos

These teams will conduct research that could prove revolutionary in the fight against cancer, including those of the pancreatic breast, ovaries, cervical, uterine, brain, lung, prostate and rectal and colon, which represent two-thirds of all U.S. cancer-related deaths.

"Stand Up To Cancer's dream teams are ushering in a new era in cancer research," said Charles Gibson, anchor of ABC News' "World News with Charles Gibson."